Switzerland: International Studies and Multilateral Diplomacy

Maintaining good health and safety is a critical element of your successful participation in an SIT Study Abroad program. As in the US, students should always use caution in unfamiliar places and circumstances, but there are no particular precautions students must know or take prior to the program. For this program, health, safety, and security information will be provided to students upon arrival in the host country.

Take good care of yourself!